

Adam ROTTENBACHER

I obtained a degree in Economics at the Department of Finance of the Budapest University of Economic Sciences (the present Corvinus University of Budapest). Since 2007 have been a member of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants, which is the largest international accountant association.

From 2002 I worked for KPMG Hungary SARL as an accountant assistant, where I was mainly responsible for the annual auditing of financial institutions, as well as commercial and agricultural companies. From 2004 I worked at Raiffeisen Bank Zrt. as a project financing manager, my main field of activity was the financing of commercial and residential property development projects. Since 2005 I have been working at the Directorate for Regional Policy of the European Commission, as an auditor. My responsibilities include the examination of operative programmes and projects supported by the European Union, in particular in Hungary, Germany and Austria. In the course of the auditing process of the projects, we pay particular attention to the lawfulness and regularity of the contract award procedures conducted by the beneficiaries and the examination of the effective and successful use of the Community's funds.
