

Toni Saraiva

Over the last eight years, Toni has delivered over 200 procurement workshops, in the UK, Europe and Canada, helping small and medium-sized businesses better understand how to bid on public contracts.

Toni is currently involved in managing and delivering six EU funded projects, three of which specifically on public procurement (international procurement, cross-border procurement and procurement of Innovation) He is a guest writer for spendmatters.co.uk, an Internet blog focusing on procurement (private and public).

Toni has been chair of the working group on public procurement of the Enterprise Europe Network

More recently, he has been involved in running a series of webinars on procurement related topics.

Toni Saraiva is a graduate in Law and Political Science from the Universities of Clermont-Ferrand (France), Glasgow (Scotland) and the Institute of Political Studies, Strasbourg (France). He has a degree in European Law and a Master in European Affairs. He is currently doing an MBA with the Warwick Business School (UK).

Toni is from the Auvergne region of France, from Portuguese parents, and now lives in Southampton, UK.

